

Abstract of the Disclosure

Geometric data generated by a CAD device is obtained to allow a user to set the type of an 5 analysis and a necessary parameter for the analysis.
The types of parameter and analysis set by the user are configured as header information about the geometric data, and the information is passed to an analytical program for performing the analysis 10 specified by the user.